The Rejoicing in His Name

—Christian Endeavor.

Rev. Roy O. Youtz.

The choice of this theme by the program committee indicates a growing change in the attitude of the Christian world toward the religion of Jesus. Rejoicing in the name of Jesus strikes a new note in the hearts of a great host of the followers of the Christ. For centuries the minor church of resignation and endurance throbbed out the martyrdom of Christianity. Then, as the Legion of the Cross gradually came into power and authority, the army of King Jesus began to raise the martial note, finally swelling into the volume of triumphant dominion. But power brought greed, intolerance and corruption into the church, self-seeking into the ranks of the clergy and superstition to the laity. The first sweet motif of faith was drowned out by the disgusting croak of Mammon and the idolatrous chants of a prostitute church. So the disciples of the practices of the ecclesiasticism became that true soul, like Wycliffe and Huss, Zwingli and Luther, were driven to protestation and condemnation, and the strident tone of the Reformation aroused the world to the sense of the peril.

Then began that long struggle between the sects, the growth of division and theological barriers, the disorders of factional hatreds and malice, of envy and persecution. And the shameful jangle of the quarrelling, the dissensions of a religion, unblest by sympathy and love, aroused the spirit of unbelief, represented by Paine and Ingersoll and their followers and satellites, to the great detriment of the church.

Such a condition could not long continue to exist. It was suicidal, and the leaders of the various bodies began to realize the dangerous condition. Then the thought began to come to the minds of men, "Where came this spirit of envy and malice? Why say that it is the fruit of real Christian activity? How can it be overcome?" So strong became the feeling of incongruity between the desire and prayer of Jesus and the practices of His followers, that a great cry for peace began to resound throughout the land, a plea for sympathy and, among God's true people, a prayer for love in the heart for each other.

Unity for Jesus

We are living, fellow Endeavorers, in the time when the church is beginning to catch the vision of this unity in Jesus, and we are a part, as an organization, of the movement to put this vision into actual practice. Here and there a belated voice from the past age of division still raises a protest against this God-directed step. But we as Endeavorers are the ones that this unity of hopes and aims and activity can and will be accomplished. Here we sit, Baptists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Christians, even forgetting and submerging the denominational names and differences of creed in our greater and more important desire for unified effort and combining name—Christian Endeavorers. And if we can do it as young people, we can later do it as older people, when, as we become more accustomed to our free association together as followers of Jesus, to even deeper and more vital extent. Many are we to rejoice today as one body in His name.

And do you realize that the object of a person's rejoicing is a sure indication of that one's character? In what do you rejoice? I can tell exactly by your character if you will tell me. Is it in midnight revels along a "Great White Way"? Is it in the gaming table, or at the bar of intoxicating liquor? Is it the pursuit of lust, or the greedy accumulation of gold? Is it in the pursuit of power and tyranny? What is your joy? Is it more in the higher things of life? Do you find your highest joy in the giving of self as a character builder of men, as a servant to alleviate the sufferings and enlarge the benefits of men as a messenger of the eternal happiness of Jesus?

Mozart made his first international tour of musical concerts at the age of 6. He rejoiced in music. Edison, when a newboy on the train, fitted up a tiny laboratory in which he took delight in the research and investigation in the realm of science and mechanics. Velasquez caught the breath of the world's greatest painters. Everyone has some special desire and object of enjoyment. What is that thing in your life? Is it a purpose that will honor Christ and exalt His name? Every worthy work can be a glorifying service to Him, and a privilege of every true Christian will so honor Him.

Rejoicing in God

Young friends, when you have learned to make all your plans and hopes and accomplishments minister to Him, then will come that great happiness, that abounding joy that the apostles of Jesus knew in His name. We are daily learning this more and more in our Christian Endeavor prayer and study and work, so it is no wonder that you are voicing this truer, sweeter, nobler note in His name, the glad song of rejoicing. The whole world is catching its echo and the thrill of its exultation to the Prince of Love and Peace. It is the glory of the apostolic days flooding our lives after 1900 years of woeful misapplication of His great principles of benevolence and love. Peter and James and John, Paul and Silas all uttered their joy in His name, and in their value to Him, "rejoicing that they were accounted worthy to suffer for the name of Jesus."

Rejoicing is the keynote of the Christian life. The world does not know true joy. A clean, pure heart, clear, unobscured conscience, unadulterated, the joy of divine friendship, the beauty of noble ideals and righteous associations; what better can life hold for any man? And in the life to come unending joy. Oh, glory to the name of Jesus that saves the world from sin! His name shall be called "Wonderful, Counsellor, Immanuel, Saviour, Redeemer, Messiah, the Son of Man and the Son of God." What wonder that we rejoice in the name of one so exalted? When we see His wisdom and power and glory all dedicated to the saving of man, for eternity we should be incense clouds indeed if we do not rejoice in Him. Rejoice evermore. Lift up your hands of praise and shout your glad "hosannas," for He is worthy and the songs of eternity shall be the glory of the Lamb.

The Life Here and Hereafter

—Calvary Presbyterian.

Rev. W. A. Hunter.

During the month Dr. Hunter officiated at the funeral of the late Rev. W. A. Hunter, conducted a memorial service yesterday morning, the theme of his address, "The Life Here and Hereafter." A continuation of the "Life Here" was taken from John 14:1-3. "I go to prepare a place for you."

Confronted with the thought of departure from earth, we are comforted greatly with the promise of a prepared place for us.

Amid the frequency of death's intrusions in our homes and communities these words that have so much heaviness in them, convey the much needed consolation of our Heavenly Friend.

The Lord has commands and requirements and at times Christ's devoted followers needed a check and rebuke which He faithfully administered. But He knew the soul's deepest want and did not ignore the bruised heart that needed healing any more than the sinful heart that needed cleansing. So we find Him perpetually comforting His disciples with words like these: "Your days and nights are often clouded with uncertainties of sorrow and pain. We move out in the dark; my plans that are broken; build hopes that are blighted and blasted like bubbles; expectations are kindled that never grow into realization."

Loss in Death.

Quietly and, may be, unexpectedly, a call comes from the other shore for one of our members or neighbors and there is left a vacancy where we are wont to see a familiar and loved one. Nothing can destroy that vacancy. The empty pew in the church or chair in the house are speechless reminders that close and intimate relationships have been cut asunder and we stand our heads bowed, that is dear, and that falling us, we resort for consolation to God's word.

Now we have in every day speech and song a rich and abundant literature alluding to a world better than this and we forget to credit the Bible as the prolific source of this hope and knowledge.

Christ has gone into and through the grave, softened the pillow—illumined the tomb for us yet on this side. He brought life and immortality to light and for our comfort we look to Him who has gone "to prepare a place for us."

This doctrine of life beyond this is not conjecture. It is not a conclusion from nature's analogies. It is not merely the product of our earnest wish, pushed to our desired conclusion.

Immortal life was actual experience with our Lord Jesus and we participate in it because we are partakers of His life.

Our immortality does not arise from the fact that Christ conquered the grave, but there is in us a divine life that in spite of death and the grave moves steadily and sublimely on and upward.

"Because I live ye shall live also." The one because the other. Said Christ to Mary, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in Me, shall never die." What comfort for all the world of suffering and sorrowing ones! It robs death of its terror, it delivers us from the fearful fear of death, were all our life-time subject to bondage.

Most people at times have fear of death. Stout and brave hearts have shrunk back. That fear thrusts itself into our thinking, and momentarily breaks the steadfastness of our tread to the tomb.

I think the very purpose of Christ was to lift this cloud, rout this fear and help us to move steadily on. If we could stand on the other side of the tomb and see Christ coming out unhurt and then remember that He had protected the same life into us, we would be less afraid to die. Paul wrote to the Colossians that "Christ was in them the hope of glory."

I suppose most people fear not so much the act of dying, but something just beyond it and that fear will not be removed by arguing.

Death Without Fear.

However, countless thousands have not that fear. They believe there is a deathless spirit in them and linked so peacefully and strongly to God that they have gone to the grave untroubled.

I do not know what can be more consoling than to be able easily to think of heaven as a place into which we pass when we die and to think of death as the gateway through which we pass to rest and reunion and realms of glory.

Our coming together today will not be a vain if it have helped you to think of it as a place—prepared by Christ—for His people—nearly—entered through the grave—immediately after death.

Harvest Time of the Future

—Armenian Presbyterian.

Rev. M. H. Knadlian.

"Harvest time" was the subject of the sermon preached by the Rev. M. H. Knadlian at the First Armenian Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The text was taken from Isaiah 5:20-22. He said: "It must have been harvest time when the prophet spoke these words. The harvest is past, the summer is ended and we are not saved." The natural and spiritual are united in the sentence. The historical setting of the text is that the prophet was expecting a return of the exiles to their native land. But the time of traveling has passed; the winter with its bitter cold and rain has set in, and yet salvation has not yet appeared. The prophet personifies his own people in the great distress of postponed redemption. "The harvest of the dead is past, the summer is ended and we are not saved." been no harvest time or fruit gathering. There has been more carelessness to external appearances. Every available means has been employed to get large audiences and new methods have been used to captivate and win their applause, and then we waited for results. We have never put our finger on the sore spot. The illness has not been diagnosed. The remedy has not been applied. The people have been fed with food that does not satisfy.

But there is no reason for despair. The summer has come and gone without any ingathering. Let us learn a lesson from our past experience and get to work for the next harvest time. Now is the season for preparation. If there is the desire for a real awakening, let us attune our hearts to the voice of God and get his meaning for us and our churches. There is a widespread feeling throughout all Christendom, although perhaps not expressed in so many words. That we are on the eve of a great and universal revival. The world's history is passing through a critical time. God is speaking to us in accents that cannot be mistaken. Who is prepared for the great task?

Great Mission Ahead

Let us have a vision of the coming harvest time. At present everything looks dark, but when the dust and cloud of battle subside, we shall see a new state of affairs arising from the ashes of ruined cities and devastated countries. It is the most glorious time who dares? When we are clear-sighted enough to see the coming use, and possessed with the opportunities it offers, then, the Church of Christ with its mighty hosts will rise up to its great task.

But to Christ and Him crucified is the demand of the day. Christianity is nothing if not a personal experience. No argument, no eloquence, no scientific discourse will bring the sinner to his knees. Tell him what ails him. Show him the remedy, lead him to the Savior and He will accomplish His work.

Problems of U. S.-Japan

—First Congregational.

America should admit as immigrants only so many alien as she can assimilate. This was voiced as a brief statement of a new immigration policy for the United States by Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, representative on International Relations of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, in the First Congregational church last night. His subject was, "Problems of War and Peace."

The lecturer has spent twenty-six years in Japan; for many years he was professor in Doshisha University of Kyoto and lecturer in the Imperial University. The following lecture contains much of the matter presented by Dr. Gulick before the Senate Committee on Immigration and Naturalization in 1914.

A New Asia

Mankind has entered on a new era. Races and civilizations for ages separated and self-sufficient are now face to face; their interests are rapidly commingling. New relations are being established between the East and West, between the masterful white nations and the hitherto peaceful and submissive peoples of Asia. The great races are proud, ambitious, determined. These qualities are part cause of their greatness.

Japan

When Japan first came in contact with the white man (1553) she welcomed him. For sixty years she gave him full opportunity. About a million Japanese, it is believed, became Christians. Then when Japan learned of the white man's aggressions and actions for world conquest, she concluded that the white man meant a White Peril, to avoid which she turned him out, exterminated Christianity and for 250 years carried out her policy of exclusion most completely.

By that policy, however, she lost the stimulus of international relations and fell behind. In 1853 she woke to discover how isolated and helpless she was, due to her exclusion policy. She wavered for a decade, suffered revolution brought on by different conceptions of the right policy to right the white man's finally late in the sixties adopted Japan's new policy, that, namely, of learning the secrets of the white man's power, in order to maintain national existence and honor on a basis of equality with the white man. This has been Japan's controlling ambition for fifty years.

Her Ambition

Japan is not yet satisfied. National existence is indeed assured, provided she can maintain her military armaments; she now has complete sovereignty within her own territories. But her citizens are not admitted to equal rights and opportunities with those of other lands—in America, Canada, New Zealand, Australia and British Africa. Her national dignity is affronted. The limitation recently placed upon her by California, and the violent anti-Asiatic policy urged by the whole Pacific coast has shocked and pained her deeply. Japan regards as highly humiliating all proposals to make general Asiatic exclusion laws.

Deeply Wounded, But Still Hoping

Japan is still hoping that some method will be found of providing for California's just demands without suspecting her to humiliation. She has asked at its face value the first treaty ever made with a white nation, namely, with America, which reads: "There shall be perfect, permanent and universal peace and sincere and cordial amity between the United States and Japan and between their people respectively, without exception of persons and places."

Japan is Misunderstood

There is wide misunderstanding in California and in America as a whole as to what Japan asks. She does not ask for free immigration for her laborers. She recognizes that any large influx of Japanese into California would produce both economic and racial difficulty.

What Japan does ask and asks earnestly is that there shall be no invidious and humiliating restrictions upon which shall involve her name. Japan stands for national honor in international relations. For this she has been strenuously striving for half a century. Is she not to be respected for it? Is not this a reasonable demand? Is there one of the evidences that she deserves it? Economic opportunity in California is not her primary interest or insistence but, recognition of manhood equality.

"The White Peril"

If you want to see how Japan feels on the policy adopted toward the Japanese on the Pacific coast, listen to this utterance of Professor Nagai in his recent article on the "White Peril."

"If one race assumes the right to appropriate all the wealth, why should not the other races feel ill-used and protest? If the yellow races are oppressed by the white races and have to revolt to avoid congestion and maintain existence, whose fault is it but the aggressors? If the white races truly love peace and wish to preserve the name of Christian nations they will practice what they preach and will soon restore to us the rights so long withheld. They will rise to the generosity of welcoming our citizens among them as heartily as we do theirs among them. We appeal to the white races to put aside their race prejudice and meet us on equal terms in brotherly cooperation."

California's Just Demands

A fair statement of the case, however, demands full appreciation of California's situation. Were immigration as freely granted to Asiatics as has been to Europeans, the Pacific coast states would undoubtedly be invaded by millions in the course of a few years. Coming by the hundred thousands annually, they could not learn our language nor we theirs. Assimilation and mutual understanding would be impossible. The result would be Asiatic and American institutions and customs struggling side by side, an imperium in imperio, with every deadly and serious danger of collision. California is absolutely right in her demand that she shall be free from such a danger. Only those immigrants should be allowed to enter, reside permanently and own land in California or anywhere in the United States who can become citizens and be completely assimilated.

The Real Suffrage Thought of Women

Motherhood is the thought uppermost in woman's mind. And with it, of course, comes the question of help, comfort, of helpful aids and influences.

Among the best of these is a well known external remedy, "Mother's Friend." It is gently applied to the surface muscles. These are lubricated, toned, made pliable as they stretch in nature requires without the strain and pain of cords and ligaments. This influence extends to the internal organs. And thus a period of repose must reflect itself not only in the mind of the mother, but upon the babe to come.

Young mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" have written say how relieved they were at the absence of morning sickness, extreme nervousness, and other distresses of which they had heard and feared. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store. Simply apply it over the stomach muscle and rest assured of perfect safety and comfort day and night. Write to Bradford Regulator, 408 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their handsome and instructive book.

Prize-Seeking Cowboys

For the information of those who may think that the California Rodeo which is to be held as a part of the Fresno District Fair is any set show with a lot of hired cowboys as the participants, Rodeo Boss Frank J. Griffin wants it known that it is of the genuine contests of cowboys.

The participants drawn solely by the lure of the $1000 offered in prizes. The only hired cowboys are two that Griffin keeps him all of the time to try out wild horses, visit cow camps over the west, secure bulls that are wild enough to make good sport and to insure the winning of prizes only after they have been fairly earned.

The winners of the championships at Fresno this week will be the champions of the entire west. It is a genuine Rodeo of the old-fashioned kind.

Fifty hundred cowboys will be here for the big prize money and the Griffin prize money. Griffin will outstrip the famous Pendleton round-up for genuine interest. Riders from every part of the west will be here, fancy riders, holders of championships, aspirants for championship honors and rough riders who love the sport.

The Real Suffrage Thought of Women

Motherhood is the thought uppermost in woman's mind. And with it, of course, comes the question of help, comfort, of helpful aids and influences.

Among the best of these is a well known external remedy, "Mother's Friend." It is gently applied to the surface muscles. These are lubricated, toned, made pliable as they stretch in nature requires without the strain and pain of cords and ligaments. This influence extends to the internal organs. And thus a period of repose must reflect itself not only in the mind of the mother, but upon the babe to come.

Young mothers who have used "Mother's Friend" have written say how relieved they were at the absence of morning sickness, extreme nervousness, and other distresses of which they had heard and feared. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store. Simply apply it over the stomach muscle and rest assured of perfect safety and comfort day and night. AN OLD STORY

The Bakersfield Californian (Democrat) coming to the rescue of the anti-pat Republicans (they are all brothers now) says: "It would be illuminating and interesting if the Fresno Republican would undertake to explain just what it was the Republican national committee did at the Chicago convention that was in violation of the rules that have governed such conventions for years past."

It is an old story, told and retold at the time, but as the Democratic and Republican parties had then not fused, and the Californian was Democratic, it may not then have been interested enough in a Republican squabble to notice.

Some of the things which were done at Chicago in 1912, to be sure, had been done before—but never when they were decisive of the issue. There had been "hand-picked" southern delegates in all conventions—but they had never nominated a candidate against the clear and united determination of the majority of the party and of its legitimately chosen representatives. Men had been seated in other conventions who had no right there—but never had a definite majority for one candidate been deliberately changed to a majority for another, by the arbitrary unseating of regularly elected delegates and the substitution of others not elected. And never had a national committee set its will and rules against the law of a state, as this committee did in the California case, when it threw out two delegates indisputably elected under the law of California and substituted two others who might perhaps have been elected if a different sort of an election had been held under a different law. Some of these things were new, and all were new in the aspect that for the first time they were decisive. Opposition to a bad system remains academic while that system does no harm. It reaches the fighting point only when that system becomes practically subversive of essential rights.

"To most of the wrong acts and most of the misrepresentative delegates of that convention there was just criticism, not fighting hostility. The facts that about half the delegates were elected and about half appointed, and that nearly all the elected delegates were for Roosevelt and nearly all the appointed ones for Taft, and that the Roosevelt delegates, moreover, represented nearly all the states in which there was any possibility of getting electoral votes—these facts made the moral majority of Roosevelt overwhelming in its predominance. They would have been conclusive on any committee desirous of representing the party members, regardless of what might be possible to do by massing the hand-picked delegates. But the fighting indignation was not at the manipulation which reduced this overwhelmingly large moral majority to a small technical one. The fighting point was reached only when even this small technical majority, which remained after the manipulation, was arbitrarily extinguished by outright stealing.

Enough delegates to change the majority in that convention were put into it by indefensible theft. Eliminating all the misrepresentative delegates foisted into the convention under the old "rules of the game," eliminating all the contested delegations decided on even plausibly debatable grounds—there still remained enough delegates on which no honest decision for the Taft delegations was possible, but which were nevertheless arbitrarily and dishonestly decided for them to transform the majority from Roosevelt to Taft. It was on that theft, because it was a theft, because it involved vital issues far deeper than the personalities of candidates, that the fight came.

These facts are not stated as a mere matter of partisan accusation. The writer, who happened to have had professional expert training in just these matters, made a thorough study at the time of these cases, from the documents, and he knows where he speaks. The facts are incontrovertible. The Republican party, in 1912, nominated Theodore Roosevelt for President. The Republican National Committee stole that nomination from the Republican party and bestowed it on William H. Taft. And the American people, by the most overwhelming defeat ever known, repudiated that theft.

"Pacifism" in the United States is alleged to be financed on an "enormous scale" by the Carnegie peace fund and other endowments. The total income is said to be $25,000 a year. But the total cost of the war in Europe is now about $1,000,000,000 a week. Between a billion a week and a quarter of a million a year is the difference between the financial backing of war and peace. The whole "subsidy" of the pacifists for a year would run the war just twenty-five minutes. And the hundreds of millions of their propaganda, as the demand for preparedness, is about as great.

Among its other slavishness, this war has revived slavery. Literally hundreds of thousands of French and Russian prisoners of war are filling the fields and harvesting the crops of Germany. It is forced and unpaid (though perhaps otherwise not unbecoming) labor, on the property and for the profit of others, is not that, at least while it lasts, the same thing as slavery? And is there any reason, considering the other things that are going on in Europe, why slavery should not flourish there, too?

MADNESS OF ART

If the I. W. W. make you angry, and you find it hard to include them within the pale of human charity, try the antidote, next time you are in San Francisco, of going out to the exposition and inspecting the violent ward in the Art Building Annex. Before you get out, you will regard the I. W. W. by comparison as rational and law-abiding citizens.

There are other rooms in the Annex, too, containing pictures in all the milder grades of dementia, as well as some certainly good, sane, wholesome pictures. But the violent ward on the second floor is the place from which to look with calm relief on all lesser degrees of lunacy and anarchy. Here Cubism and Futurism run riot—so riotous, indeed, are they that they will not even stay in their frames, but splash over the neighborhood. For this is liberty, and free art can not confine itself within a mere frame. Here is a room full of pictures which represent neither things, nor thoughts, nor even emotions, but disordered visions, manias and deliriums.

There is even one specimen of sculpture, a statue in the middle of the room. Just what it represents is undisclosed, but it is evidently violent, since there are many contorted muscles in violent action. These muscles, to be sure, are not on the legs, of which, curiously enough, there are only two (there is a nude on the wall near by with eighteen) but they suggest the idea that if they were on the legs those legs would probably kick. The muscles and trunk lead the eye upward to the suggestion of what (or where) might be a head, but on inspection the head turns out to be mostly unassorted junk from the tin shop, bursting out from where the brains ought to be. The symbolism is obvious and appropriate.

In one corner is a vivid picture of the mental state of a delirium-tremens patient looking out the window of a railway train. There is a sign-board with the name of a station flying through the air, various sounds of "r-r-r-r-r-r" and "tin-tin-tin-tin-tin" assailing the eye, and splashes of yellow, red, blue and green frantically dashed about.

More realistic and less symbolic is the portrait of a journalist at 3 a. m. on his night off. That it is a journalist is suggested by some fragments of newspapers pasted on various parts of the picture and frame. That it represents a person rather than merely a state of nerves is also evident from the various human organs or parts thereof distributed around. On opposite sides of the picture are two lips, which, if juxtaposed, might have made a mouth, and from the outer ends of the fragments of the upper lip project two fierce moustaches of real hair, glued to the picture. Above one of them is also part of a nose, with the other half near by, and there are eyes, several of them, from which two might be chosen to complete the face. There is also a strip of velvet pasted on, out of which a tailor, by cutting and fitting, might make a collar.

The painter of this portrait, however, lacked courage. He painted at least the disjunct members of a man. His neighbor does not seem to paint anything that could even be put together into a picture. He represents the vision which flashes across the retina of the duly inspired artist when he slips down the front steps on a dark night and sees stars.

It would be wearisome to describe them all. Delirium tremens, dementia praecox, mania ferox, and the acute neuroses each has its representative here, embodied in immortal Art. To go from this room out into the hall, where is a huge but recognizable landscape, the foreground excavated with a shovel and the background executed with a spirit-gun, is to escape at last to comparative sanity. And to go from there down to Grant Avenue, to hear the I. W. W. rave, is to have been introduced to clear-headed, dispassionate, conservative statesmanship.

It is a good antidote. Try it.

KING'S COUNSEL MAKE STOPS AT CHICAGOTo Investigate Alleged War Fraud in Victoria

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Sir Charles Davidson and John Thompson, king's counsel, stopped in Chicago tonight on their way to Victoria, B. C., in their investigation of frauds alleged in connection with the purchase of war supplies.

Sir Charles said the inquiry in Prince Edward already had disclosed false profits in the thousands and that several dealers have been forced to disgorge.

There will be an investigation in Vancouver into the purchase by the Canadian government of submarines from Chile at the outbreak of the war. The scope of the inquiry covers the breadth of the American continent for all manner of supplies, including clothing, horses, surgical equipment and marine supplies. Sir Charles formerly was chief justice of Canada.

PARIS, Sept. 25, 10:47 p. m.—The Belgian official communication issued today says: "During the day of September 25 the enemy's artillery displayed great activity on the entire front."

Man of the Hour

SHOULD HAVE LIGHTS
ON ALL VEHICLES

Editor Republican:—Knowing your paper is for all, I wish to invite what of the late law that was to be in effect ere this for the lighting of all vehicles on the public highways. Last night I was out driving on highway north and from city to Biola Junction I counted not less than 30 vehicles with no light. Not a single horse team carried a light and some autos wholly without lights, for which there was no excuse, having just left the city. Others without rear lights—also motorcycles.

It is criminal for any one to venture on the highways at night without lights. It is impossible to see an unlighted vehicle when you are passing a lighted machine on the left. The lights behind also throw the unlighted vehicle in the shade. But for quick action of a good driver last night four of these kind of accidents were narrowly averted.

I drive through the state and I do not find this condition any place else of the size of our city. There is just one remedy for this and that is to enforce the law. A great many people are too careless of human life to do this when asked and only an enforced law will wake them up to their sense of duty and justice to themselves and the public. But they are ready to holler the loudest when struck by a machine.

If the farmers rightly appreciated what the auto people have done to make good, pleasant roads possible for them to enjoy, I think they would at least feel under obligation to help keep things right after they are given to them. No man on earth is so taxed for good roads, or the upkeep of good roads as the autoists. What farmer has a special tax levied on his rig for the purpose? Yet he takes up just as much room on this highway as the autoist and while this

STYLE

Style is something which looks so good this year that those who use it next year will be hopelessly out of date.

It is a sort of bacillus which affects clothes, furniture, houses, automobiles and the womanly form. When a thing is stylish, it is beautiful for a limited engagement, like an ancient actress with a talented press agent.

Style is the gas which causes the cost of living to soar. It makes a great deal of the difference between a happy, contented life on $12 a week and an unsuccessful effort to keep ahead of the wolf on $200 a month.

It is a question for future consideration. I will say this: It is as little as a farmer can expect to contribute to the welfare of public travel is to do it his vehicle. And as for the autoist, he should be fined, for he surely knows better.

Now, it is wholly useless to be saying we put them on their honor. This is all right for many, and many more have no sense of honor or justice to the traveling public.

Our southern cities, also the northern ones, let this indifferent class pass for their lack of honor. Why not we, the present state of affairs is positively criminal. Yours for good roads and well disciplined. A CITIZEN.

The law providing for lights on horse-drawn vehicle does not go into effect until December 31, 1915.

The
San Diego
Exposition

About three years ago, almost in the center of the city of San Diego, there was a 1400-acre tract of land, free from buildings or foliage.

Water never touched this mesa except from the rains which strike this southern city. Nothing grew, save cactus and sage brush, and a few scattered pepper trees struggling for life.

Today on this very spot stands the San Diego Exposition, a gorgeous city of Old Spain.

Now the land about the buildings, even down to the depths of the canyons, is covered with a thick undergrowth of semi-tropical foliage, beautiful large trees, spreading shrubs, low bushes and flowers.

The desert has been transformed into a magic garden.

You should see this wonderful transformation. It is a pleasant ride from here on the Santa Fe.

There are fifty-seven different levels of style, each one of which is being attained with great effort by families which can't afford it. Those who are devoting their harassed lives to being stylish should remember that just as soon as they are rich enough to maintain themselves comfortably in Style No. 23, Style No. 23 will move around just out of reach in front of them and make them perfectly miserable until they get it.

Housewives

The Fresno Public Library has virtually become a working part of the University of California with the operation with the university extension division in providing a library of reference books for the students in courses on home economics.

The courses are especially arranged for housewives, with a long list of books dealing with everything from the care and feeding of infants to the theory of household management. Along with this is a special group of books arranged particularly for farmers and dealing with the various matters that a scientific farmer's wife could find valuable.

The Bureau of Correspondence and Instruction of the University of California has recently perfected an arrangement with the State Normal School of Manual Arts and Home Economics at Santa Barbara whereby the courses in home economics are being offered. More Real Genuine Bargains From The Hawley-King Stock

Where We Got The Goods

The Hawley-King Company—one of Los Angeles big wholesale houses—decided to retire. They wanted to make a clean sweep of everything for cash. There are not many implement firms who are large enough and strong enough financially to handle a stock as large as this stock was. This limited the probable number of purchasers, and when we made them an offer, although it was ridiculously low, they accepted it. The result was that we bought this high grade line of goods at a fraction of what they cost Hawley-King.

Our
Surrey Bargains
$95

Don't postpone buying your surrey until after crop time. Several customers who intended to purchase surreys later in the fall have already taken advantage of our prices and bought within the last few days. We have a nice line for you to choose from now. Make your selection while we still have a full assortment.

We show here just one of the many surreys that Hawley-King had in stock. It was their best seller and was worth every dollar they asked for it. It has the long easy-riding springs, full circle 5th wheel, double reacher, wrought steel stops, A-grade wheels with steel tires, hand buffed leather cushions and backs—all the "ear-marks" in short, that make a high grade job.

Hawley-King sold this for $150.00—Our price is $95.00

Hay Carriers

Hawley-King's stock, added to what we already had, overloads us on hay carriers. We want to reduce our stock. We bought the Hawley-King carriers at half the regular cost. We will sell them proportionately. There are two styles. First a Clover Leaf carrier for wooden track. This carrier has 7-8 inch axles, big open mouth to receive the fork pulley, is made with swivel bottom and can be reversed. It has large truck wheels and a good strong, safe, heavy frame. Made by F. E. Myers and Sons, the world's largest makers of hay tools. Hawley-King's price was $1.15. Our price is $2.35

Clover Leaf Carrier for steel track. This is made up of a 16-inch track, large truck wheels running on 7-8 inch axles, big rope sheaves with extra long bearings, swivel bottom that is also reversible. The lock is made up of 2 parts and has no springs. A good, strong, safe tool, sold regularly by Hawley-King for $5.00. Our price to you is $3.45

Bone Mills

Every poultry raiser needs a mill for grinding bones, oyster shells and glass. In the past, the cost of these mills has limited the sales. We got several small No. 32 Stover mills in this stock. We could hold them for the regular price of, and probably sell them in the course of a few months, but we prefer to put them on the bargain table at a price that will give us a reasonable profit and turn them quickly. So while they last—there are only a few—the price will be only $3.35

Singletrees

Nearly half a carload of hickory singletrees in this Hawley-King stock—too many for us to sell in the regular way, so we are cutting the price to you just in half.

These trees are in the white—you can see for yourself just what kind of material they are made of. They have heavy wrought iron clips and are good full weight stock.

Hawley-King price 25c
24-in. Singletree for plows..... 30c
36-in. Singletree for wagons..... 80c
4-in. Plow Doubletree Bar..... 1.00

Hand Carts

For moving light, bulky loads there is nothing so convenient as a hand cart. We have a few of these made up with 42-inch wheels with 3-inch tires, 1-inch axles and a box bed that measures 26 inches wide, 41 inches long and 10 inches deep inside. The side and ends of this bed are removable so that it can be used for carrying long articles like lumber, pipe, etc. Hawley-King retailed this cart for $15.00. Our sale price is $10.00

Bolster Springs

There are only about 75 sets of springs of this type in this stock. While we have most sizes on hand, the line is not complete; so we are making prices on them that will move them out fast. If the size you want is listed here now is the time to buy. You will never have a chance to get springs at this price again which are from $4.00 to $10.00 per set less than the regular prices.

Why We Make These Prices

We have handled stock like this before, and have found out that the big profit is not in the goods, but in the new customers that we sell to. The surest way of making these new customers and friends is by giving the profits with them. That is why, although these are all new, high grade goods, we are making prices to you as low as our dealer regularly pays for these goods. You save about one-third by buying at this sale. At the same time, we get a fair profit and gain a new customer.

Buggy Poles

There is nearly a carload of buggy poles and shafts in this stock of goods. Some of the poles are for delivery wagons, some for surreys, some for buggies. Some are the kind that sell for $7.00 to $12.00. Others are trimmed with imported patent leathers and have silver plated trimmings—poles that Hawley-King used to sell for as high as $22.00. There are so many poles and so much of the stock is fancy, high priced goods that we realize that the only way we can sell them is to forget costs and values and price them at less than the common cheaper kinds regularly sell for. Compare the prices we quote with those others must ask.

Hickory Spring Wagon Pole 510 to 512 50 $5.50 to $6

3-Bow Wagon Top
Hide in the shade. Keep dry when it rains. Equip your farm wagon with one of these tops. They are away ahead of the wagon umbrellas. They are fully adjustable, and are made so that they can be easily folded down out of the way, or taken off entirely without the use of tools. These tops were sold by Hawley-King for $4.50, but, for a while our price will be $3.50

DELIVERY WAGONS
A Full Line And All Of Them Underpriced

Hawley-King's line of delivery wagons was particularly complete. Light deliveries, heavy deliveries, furniture wagons, bakery wagons, wagons for cleaning works, heavy express wagons, long beds, short beds, high gears and low, they are all here. It is the biggest, nicest line of these goods in the valley today. Every job is clean and new and up-to-date. And, more than all, every job is high class. We bought them at a fraction of what they cost Hawley-King, and in consequence we can sell them for less than the ordinary cheaply constructed delivery rigs sell for.

We suggest that you look these over while the line is complete. At our prices they won't be here long.

If your business calls for a covered wagon such as dye works, bakeries and dry-goods stores use, read these specifications.

PANEL DELIVERY
Here is a wagon built by De Kalb. De Kalb makes only business wagons of the best grade and specializes on paneled work. This is one of his best jobs. It has 1 1/4 inch axles with the very best of wheels. The body has solid wood side panels and hardwood ceiling, covered with water proofed canvas. On each side, by the driver's seat, there is a round window of beveled glass and an oval piece of this same glass in the rear. The trimmings, door-latches, handle grips, whip socket, etc., are heavily nickel plated. The gear is painted red, the body a very dark blue, with gold striping. It is as handsome a wagon as you will see any place. Before the automobiles cut into the wagon business this delivery would have sold for about $25.00. Hawley-King made a special price on this style of $185.00, and sold all but a few of these. We bought them right then, and offer them complete as described for $136.00 each.

Lots of other styles—come in and look the line over.

METHODISTS WILL ADOPT DRY POLICY

Local Ministers and Laymen to Attend Meetings in San Diego

As one of the principal matters to occupy the attention of the members of the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church of Southern California at San Diego this week, a definite stand will be taken on the wet and dry question.

Assurance is given that official endorsement will be given two amendments already proposed and providing total prohibition and the abstinence of the retail liquor trade. These provisions were adopted by the Committee of One Hundred in a session held in Fresno last spring with representatives from the church and all shades of prohibition forces.

Fresno will have five ministers as representatives in the conference, which is expected to draw an attendance of 350 from all parts of the southern half of California. Three lay delegates from Fresno will also attend the Laymen's Association, which will hold meetings simultaneously with the conference.

District Superintendent John Oliver and Rev. Ralph H. Chaffee, pastor of the Van Ness M. E. church, have already gone to San Diego, and Dr. F. B. Cowgill, pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. Thomas Burdick, pas-

MARGUERITE CLARK'S GREATEST ATTAINMENT

SWAYS WITH FASCINATION IN HER LATEST PRODUCTION

Entrancing Paramount Star, Who Plays at Kinema Today in "Helene of the North"

When the critic approached the manager of the Broadway theater in New York, after the first week's presentation of "Helene of the North," and asked him how the public liked the play, he answered in his managerial and unemotional way. "They say it is the best that Marguerite Clark has ever done." And the lineup in front of the 2,500 seat theater proved it.

The Most Unique Impersonation Ever Assumed by this Dainty Artist:

The story is one that holds light, there is atmosphere and the players are excellent. It abounds with strong, thrilling situations, while Marguerite Clark assumes the difficult contrasts of a wild maid of the Canadian woods, and as a beautiful debutante of New York's aristocratic "400." While the settings and scenery are superb, they are relegated to a position of comparative unimportance—the play and the players are always foremost—they don't forget it.

Plan is Finely Constructed and Appropriate to Miss Clark's Ability.

The excellence of a well constructed story is but enhanced by the winsome atmosphere created by the captivating Marguerite Clark. She is the daughter of a

PLAZA OFFERS LAST WEEK OF VAUDEVILLE

Manager Hesse Will Open Empire Theater on October 3rd

It was a good sized crowd and a well pleased one that filled the Plaza Aldome last night and enjoyed one of the most satisfactory bills of the vaudeville season. Each act is well selected and all of them have something well worth listening to. The bill will be given again tonight and tomorrow night.

Sweet Ballade.
Miss Vera Landdale, who sings the popular ballads of the day, is one of the favorites on the bill. Miss Landdale is the possessor of one of the sweetest voices heard here in many a day.

"How Time Flies."
Time does indeed speed on its way when Smith and Warnock offer their delightful little comedy skit. "How Time Flies," it is full of fun and the points are all well brought out without being overdone by the clever pair who present this act.

A Tangle of Limbs.
Ed Handson, the contortionist, can twist himself into a seemingly inextricable tangle of arms and legs. His work is quick, snappy and well performed. Though this is the sort of act that seldom stirs an audience to enthusiasm, Handson was applauded for his skill in last night's performance.

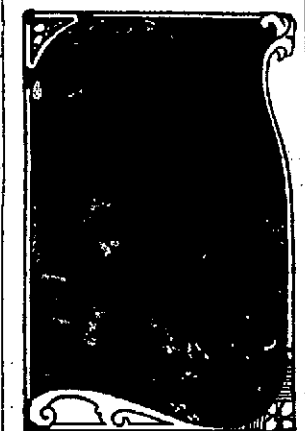

Comedy Comes First.
The headline act on the bill, though not given first place on it, is the rich comedy offered by Williams and Warner, the merry makers, who claim the honor of inventing the elapophone.

At Risk of Falls.
The Willminds, who come from Australia, have one of the best unicycle acts that has ever been featured on any stage here and their work is of the highest order. They also use a table and a ladder to enhance the hazards of their work.

The pictures are excellent, being another comedy for which the Plaza is famous. An entire change comes on Wednesday.

To Move to Empire.
The Plaza Aldome will give the last performance of the season next Saturday. The new bill which comes on Sunday, October 4th, will offer many surprises. Some of the best vaudeville ever given in California will be given in the Empire. Manager Hesse has been booking some exceedingly good acts for the winter season.

"ALWAYS IN THE WAY" ROMANTIC PICTURE DRAMA

Scene from "Always in the Way," with Mary Miles Minter, at Lyric

The fascinating screen persona of Mary Miles Minter, will be the lead in a romantic picture drama in 11 reels at the Lyric today and tomorrow, with other films. "Always in the Way" is the dramatization of Charles K. Harris' famous song of the same name. The story was undoubtedly the greatest hit of the ballad days of ten years ago, and the story that has been constructed from the lyrics is an unusually interesting one, rich in comedy and pathos. The story deals with the career of a child under the tyranny of a cruel stepmother, and is a modern realization of the fairy tale, "Cinderella."

"You Know Me, Al"
Another of Bing W. Lardner's quaint baseball comedies, "You Know Me, Al," will be a part of today's program. Baseball fans and others have found these comedies a source of great fun. Considerable following has been attracted by these pictures because in each serial are exploited some of the famous stars of the baseball world.

"Who Pays?" Two Days
The engagement of the "Who Pays?" serial has been advanced to Wednesday of each week hereafter, and will be continued two days, Wednesday and Thursday. "Today and Tomorrow" will be the title of the eighth serial to be shown this Wednesday and Thursday.

Warwick Coming
Robert Warwick, principal star of the World Film Corporation, is announced for Friday and Saturday in Robert Mantell's great stage success, "The Face in the Moonlight," a story of the French Revolution.

At one time Betty Green rode into New York on a special engine to transport a deal of hundreds of thousands of dollars. She claims the engine took her to pay $3 more for a coach.

Betty Green is the mother of a son, whom she hopes to make the richest man in the world, and a daughter, who is the wife of a prominent New York banker. To develop her son's business qualities, she forced him to sell papers on the streets when a child.

ROMANTIC MOUNTAIN PLAY FOR FAIR WEEK

"TRAIL OF LONESOME PINE" TONIGHT

Scene from "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," at Theater Fresno This Week

The crowds that attend the Fresno District Fair will have the opportunity of seeing the dramatization of John Fox's fascinating novel, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," while in Fresno, for this charming play will be the week's attraction at the Theater Fresno, beginning this evening.

The story was one that touched the hearts of people of many nations, so simple, so beautiful, so appealing to the theme and so lovable the characters about which the novel was written. Those who have read the romantic novel will be more than delighted with the stage portrayal of the enthralling dramatic interpretation, for the scene painter's art brings realism and beauty to a supremely interesting story.

Unusual Scenic Effects
The tall, gaunt pines loved so well by June, the sweet child of the mountains, creature of passions, have been faithfully reproduced by the Theater Fresno's scenic artist, and the many other picturesque scenes that take one back to the hills of Virginia, will form a most elaborate stage setting for this production.

Many gripping moments are crowded into this play of mountain life by the deep hatred so characteristic of the feudists of the hills.

A particularly entrancing scene in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is the deep still pool by the lone pine tree, where much of the action occurs.

This wonderful play will be presented at the Theater Fresno all this week by the Post Players, who have won instant recognition as players of rare ability.

Manager Hesse states that the box office will be open daily from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m.

Lillian Wish, Appearing in "The Clansman," at the White Again This Week

No tongue has ever uttered, and no pen has ever written a stronger plea that Americans stand by their President. Woodrow Wilson, in the crisis he is now facing, than that contained in the picture, "The Clansman," now in its second week at the White theater. If any argument is needed to induce Americans to a man and to a woman to endorse the policy which makes for peace, and which is being advocated by President Wilson, "The Clansman" has supplied it.

The situation in the days around which the picture story is built and the situation of today have many things in common, and the picture shows the consequences of war—not war as waged on foreign soil, between people with whom we have no blood relationship to speak of—but war at home, at our very heartbeats, spilling not alien blood but that of our own, our husbands and our brothers.

The augmented orchestra at the White this week is deserving of special mention. The orchestra is composed of local and Chicago musicians and has never been so well equipped in this city. Their accompaniment to the Clansman photo-drama gives one the impression that they are in a New York theater. They are in reality seeking the same presentation of the Clansman except in New York where the picture-drama is now presented the price is two dollars, ten, instead of seventy-five cents, the top price at the White this week.

Of course where the prices charged are seventy-five cents to two dollars, the theaters furnish their patrons with something more than a picture on the screen and organ music. These theaters have from twenty-four to fifty pieces in an orchestra.

WOMEN WHO LEAD THE WAY

Hetty Green—The Most Unique Heiress

Hetty Green, the world's most unique heiress, is undoubtedly the most shrewd business woman living today. Although she is not "self-made," as her mode of living has led many to believe, she has succeeded in increasing her original fortune of $100,000 to ten times its size in fifty years of her business career.

Despite her mammoth fortune, Hetty Green lives almost as frugally as a poor girl. For more than a half century she has not been established in a real home, but has drifted about in cheap hotels or lodging houses, sometimes registering under the name of her pet dog and putting his name on the door plate. Occasionally she takes a flat in some obscure corner of New York.

In her garb she is as unpretentious as in her abode. She invariably wears black—a worn rusty black. Her costume consists of a black dress of an obscure cut, a short black cape and a little hood or a plain calico to give the greatest amount of service. The face of the heiress of millions is so unassuming to the public that she is seldom recognized on the street.

Hetty Green infrequently rides anywhere. She never appears in a carriage or automobile and she will not ride in a street car when she can walk. Her whereabouts is a constant problem to the tax collector, whom she freely admits that she dodges a however possible. Her assessed proper; y however is generally limited. She maintains very little real estate. The property of stocks that she acquires she sells quickly. Her simple formula for business success is to buy when cheap and sell when high. She will sell at a small profit rather than run the slightest risk for a higher one.

Much of her fortune she has made by the lending of money and the sale of the property secured through foreclosures. She has over a half million in lending. She invariably investigates properties in person and will only accept unquestionable security. One of the most successful foreclosures in which Hetty Green figured was that of Chicago property. She sold for millions of dollars hundreds of acres of land in the heart of the city that she had obtained as a mortgage for a few thousands of dollars.

She made a fabulous profit from the panic of 1907, when she lent money to wealthy New Yorkers, lending them over $1,000,000. In the crash of her father's fortune, she later reaped a rich interest.

Hetty Green was born in 1824 in New Bedford, Mass., of Quaker parentage. At the age of 13 she became heiress of $100,000 by the death of her father. Finding her early fortune was a little of New York. She would go to great social functions in not with wooden horse drawn over her shoes to keep the snow out, rather than to incur the expense of riding.

She was married in 1847 to Howard J. Green, a wealthy silk trader, with the understanding that Green should not

OAKDALE RICE CROP PROMISES BIG YIELD

Texas Man Has 200 Acres That Will Run 35 Sacks to Acre

OAKDALE, Sept. 26.—The 200 acres of rice being grown at Oakdale by L. Kish, a Texas rice man, will run close to 35 sacks to the acre, the first average of any rice section in the state. This yield is considered remarkable in view of the fact that a portion of the land was planted too late. Some of the rice will be as high as 60 sacks to the acre, while the last planted fields will not do better than 25 sacks.

SYMPTOMS OF DEBILITY

People who are tired all of the time and never feel rested even after a long night in bed who cannot regain weight and strength, whose feet lack elasticity and who feel no joy in living, are debilitated.

A medical examination might easily show that every organ of the body is acting normally but the pallor of the face will usually show that the blood is thin. This is the root of the trouble.

Debility is a loss of vitality, not affecting any one part of the body, but the system generally. The blood carries to every part of the body and the use of a blood tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly tones up the system. The first sign of returning health is a better appetite, improved digestion, a quicker step, brighter eyes, better color to the cheeks. The rich, red blood, reaching every organ and muscle, carries renewed health and vigor. The nerves are quieted, sleep becomes more refreshing and with persistent treatment and proper living the debilitated patient is once more enabled to enjoy life.

Two useful books, "Building Up the Blood" and "What to Eat" will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong."—MRS. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Is an accomplished fact and this we demonstrate daily in our offices. If you have a tooth which is badly decayed and the nerve has to be removed, that nerve is absolutely killed and the tooth made immune from pain before that nerve is removed.

If you have a tooth which must be extracted there are many reasons why you should come to our office for that operation. Skill and dexterity, proper methods and painless treatment. We do not compete with cheap quacks nor self-styled painless dentists but only with first-class dentists who charge twice the price that we do.

We charge the same prices that you pay back east and give a written guarantee with all work that we do.

Don't fail to come in and have us give you an estimate on the cost before having any dental work done. Out of town patients finished in the shortest space of time consistent with good work.

Every dentist who is associated with me is a specialist in his line.

DR. KLEISER.

We save you money and do superior work. I have two chemists, one is the "trust" dentist, who is in a combination to keep up the price of dentistry as high as the traffic will bear.

I have another enemy. This is THE CHEAP QUACK, who does inferior work. He comes, fills your mouth with inferior materials and sends you away, and he surely fades away. He may be here this year, but next year will be gone.

I HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED IN THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY FOR FIVE YEARS. AND MY BUSINESS HAS GROWN TO BE THE LARGEST DENTAL PRACTICE WEST OF CHICAGO. BUILT UP ON THE FOUNDATION OF HIGH GRADE WORKMANSHIP, HIGH GRADE MATERIALS AND A PRICE LIST LOW ENOUGH TO BE WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL, AND YET NOT "CHEAP."

ELIMINATION RACES TO SELECT THE TWELVE FASTEST CARS WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

G. M. Robinson and James Ryal of Los Angeles, Who Have Entered Taha Car in the "California Rain Classic"

Elimination races to select the twelve fastest cars will be held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. They will be held from 11 to 1 o'clock on these days for the purpose of selecting the twelve fastest cars for the final big race on Saturday afternoon.

When entry blanks were mailed out to drivers and publicly was given to the fact that the Fresno District Fair was offering $5,000 in purses to the fastest cars that entered in the California Rain Classic, it was expected that at least a dozen entries of really good cars would be secured.

But when the entries closed last Monday night and a final count was made, it was found that an even score of speedy cars from all along the Coast were entered, insuring the most hotly fought race ever pulled on a mile track in the state.

The Fresno Rain Classic is for 15 miles and will be the big event of Saturday afternoon. The track is now being oiled and put into perfect condition.

Because twenty cars are too many to start in a race of this kind, especially as nearly all of them are great, heavy cars, it is necessary in some way to minimize the danger.

So the tryouts will be held on Wednesday and Thursday for the purpose of selecting the twelve speediest of the speed cars. The race is strictly for professionals in specially built racing cars. It is held under the auspices of the A. A. A.

Cooper To Start Cars. N. Ray Cooper has been chosen as official starter, as he has had much experience in the racing game. W. W. Sargent and Ernest Johnson have been selected as timers. The following judges and other officials have been named: Will K. Clark of Stockton, L. A. Nares of Fresno, W. E. Drury and Fred H. Hall of Bakersfield, W. L. Hughes and Blythe H. Henderson of San Francisco, L. S. Upson of Sacramento, John L. Graham of Merced, H. C. Carr of Porterville, S. O. Walker of Visalia.

Governor Johnson, Mayor Ralph of San Francisco and President C. C. Moore of the Exposition have been invited to be present as honorary referees. Governor Johnson has been a guest of the Fresno District Fair for several years past.

No extra charge will be made for grand stand seats for the elimination contests.

Pop Geers, Race Driver, Has Accumulated Million in Purses

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Recently compiled figures show that Pop Geers, the veteran Grand Circuit driver, has won more than $1,000,000 in purses since he began to handle the reins back in 1910.

His best season was in 1912, when he totaled $116,370. Ty Cobb, Paaky McFarland and other financial stars of sport will have to keep going at top speed if they hope to equal the record made by the wizard of the reins.

Backed by a strengthened lineup and steady support in all innings, Oscar Jones, the big league veteran, pitched the Demers to victory over the Boosters in a closely played game at Recreation Park yesterday afternoon. The Boosters cracked off sufficient hits and took advantage of a deluge of Demers errors to roll up a total of fifteen hits, while the Demers put a single man across the home plate.

By winning a decisive victory over the Boosters, the rejuvenated Boosters took the first leg of the championship cup in the championship series for top place in the Fresno City Baseball League.

The way Walter's men forged ahead in yesterday's game, after losing two straight contests to the Demers forces, was a complete upset of pre-championship prediction. After severe trouncings by Bradley's squad, the strengthened Boosters club turned the tables.

A hard two bagger by Bradley scored the lone Demers count in the second period, scoring McCall, the Vancouverite, who reached third on a long drive to the outfield. The Demers threatened to score at several points in the game, but Jones steadied, and backed by clean fielding, pulled the winning squad from dangerous quarters.

J. Cartwright pitched good ball until the seventh, when his offerings were rapped hard by the Boosters. Five points were added before the side was retired. E. Cartwright, who succeeded him in the Demers box, was unable to check the scoring. Three tallies were annexed in the eighth and four in the ninth.

Fast plays and the brilliant fielding which marked the previous meetings of the two teams were lacking yesterday. An off day, was the claim of the Demers forces for the game lost yesterday. Manager Bradley expressed no lack of confidence in the final outcome of the championship series. The Demers pilot will take further steps to strengthen his squad next Friday's meeting.

Manager Bradley's men have now assembled a nine that will cop the pennant in short order. The lineup yesterday was: Boosters: Martin, first base; Clarno, second base; Adams, center field; Klein, shortstop; Preston, third base; Nobles, right field; Nelson, catcher; Miller, left field; Jones, pitcher.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A bitter feud, suggested over an inheritance by an ancestor, has existed between the Arthur Stanley and the Edgar family. The feud is suggested by the fact that the succession to the Stanley estate in England may come to an American family. When his wife died after having given birth to a daughter, Col. Stanley bought and substituted as her a new born gypsy boy. Three years later the gypsy mother, Hagar, stands the colonel's daughter, who is being reared in secret, and obtains possession of the "diamond from the sky" and a document that holds the secret of the feud.

eventful months from that of a striking girl to a resolute woman. Was it love for Arthur, or was it the old feudal courage of her forebears that prompted her to daring and resolve?

The wisdom of the serpent and the mildness of the dove! Esther had turned at the approach of her enemies, stirring as one half unconscious and in pain, and had secured the Stanley document under a stone.

"DON'T YOU LAY A HAND ON HER!" CRIED LUKE, "I WILL CARRY HER."

slipping it from her bosom and hiding it, even as she seemed to stir feebly dazed and pain racked. She knew why Blair Stanley pursued and sought her, she realized the tragic accident to the coach was his work—his work, and that of his accomplice, Luke Lovell, the gypsy blacksmith.

Beside her the insensible English lawyer neither moaned nor stirred, while Esther, her eyes closed again, feigned unconsciousness. She heard Luke Lovell roar angrily, like a gullen beast.

"Damn you, Blair Stanley! You know Esther was in the coach. It wasn't the English lawyer you hired me to kill, thank you! He lies dead enough to suit anybody there! You tricked me, you gentleman blackguard, I wouldn't have a hair of her head harmed! I'll have your life for this!"

"I swear I didn't see the girl; I was in the shop, you know, when the coach stopped!" lied Blair kingly. "It was the English lawyer I was after. He is going to find Arthur Stanley. If Arthur Stanley goes back to Virginia I will swing for the murder of Dr. Lee!"

"You lie, and you know you lie!" roared Luke. "The girl is dead. She would never look at me, but I have always loved her, I might have been a better man if she had cared for me."

"You forget that I am fond of Esther, too," murmured Blair. "But if she is dead or if she is unconscious, and if she lives, she will have no thought of you and I," added Blair. "It is she who has the proof we seek to make our fortunes, the proof Arthur Stanley will give all the millions he has made as 'John Powell' to keep suppressed. Esther has the Stanley document," and as he said this Blair stooped over the seemingly unconscious girl.

"Don't you touch her! Don't you lay a hand on her!" cried Luke. "I will carry her. She isn't dead, thank God!"

Esther stirred and sat up and gazed resolutely at them both. Luke picked her up as though she were a child. "You bring her baggage," he said roughly to Blair, and he nodded his head, indicating the dress suit case that had fallen from the crushed and shattered coach.

In this way Esther was borne to the blacksmith shop. She knew the document was safe from these evil hands, under the rock by the coach and, as she knew Luke Lovell was, she felt no great harm would befall her while he was by.

This proved to be the case, for when Esther declared to them that the Stanley document, and she professed to know nothing of such a document, was not upon her person, Luke believed her and Blair Stanley was constrained to do likewise.

"Look in her suit case then," said Luke, and Blair, picking up a chisel, forced the lock. As desperate as was the situation, Esther could hardly restrain a smile when Blair, with an expression of disgust, brought forth from the suit case a pair of striped pajamas, a flask, some shirts and collars, and other male belongings, more than evidently the property of the precise English lawyer, Marmaduke Smythe.

"We have got the wrong baggage," snarled Blair to Luke. "You go back to the coach and find hers, and I will guard her here."

"I would as soon trust her with a wolf," growled Luke. Then he turned to Esther and held his arms out to her. "You say the word, Esther," he said, "and I will kill this blackguard for you!"

But Esther shrank back from the fierce, passionate gypsy. "I hate you as I hate him!" she said. "You will get no document, you will get nothing, and I do not fear either or both of you. Arthur Stanley will repay you well and fittingly for even daring to lay a hand upon me!"

"Well, to you up then, Missy," said Luke, shrugging his shoulders. "If I can't have the lady I will take the gold. Matt Harding, your good father, if he was your father, made his fortune out of the Stanley secret, and I will make mine. As for Arthur Stanley, he can't help you; we know enough to disgrace him if we expose him here in California and show he is not John Powell, the millionaire, but Arthur Stanley, wanted for murder in Virginia!"

Esther scorned to answer. The two worthies, neither trusting the other, tied her securely and went together back to the wrecked coach to find her suit case and, as bound her, and beat upon the great heavy door of the shop, crying for help.

Quabba, mourning his young mistress and bewailing his fate that he had so strangely found and so strangely lost the diamond from the sky again, had set out on foot for the mines to find Arthur, but especially to find Esther, his young mistress. It was just at nightfall that he reached the forge, some three miles yet from the mine. It was locked, gloomy and deserted in the darkness. But from within he heard a voice he recognized, the voice of his young mistress crying for help. A sledge stood by the door. Quabba, seized it and shattered down the door and soon he was shedding tears of joy as he clasped the hands of Esther.

There was no time for explanation now. A look from Esther and the two sped off through the darkness, to be followed a few moments later by Blair and Luke returning to find their fair prisoner had been freed and was gone. Over the mountains, through the darkness went pursuers and pursued, while by a log near a marsh, Lawyer Marmaduke Smythe gathered up some dry trash and lit his fire to camp for the night. He had lost his way, but philosophically he accepted the situation.

"I am a lucky beggar that I thought to bring a tin of biscuit and a flask of brandy in my luggage," he remarked, half aloud. And he opened the suitcase he had borne so far, together with his other implements of gun and deer head. "My word! The wrong personage!" he exclaimed, as in the flashlight he brought forth a woman's dainty nightgown and boudoir cap. "Well, no matter," he added, resignedly, "they will protect me from the drafts in this jungle! Now if I only had a night light in case my fire goes out! I have been always used to having a night light, and if I had that and my portable bathtub I could stand the wilderness! But if the late Lord Cecil Stanley could only see me now!" he added, fervently, as he surveyed himself in his strange night attire. "By Jove, this is roughing it with a vengeance!"

The moon came up, and, as if waiting for it as a signal, the harsh, discordant chorus of croaking marsh frogs sounded on all sides.

"Indian! Savage! Inquisit!" cried the alarmed lawyer, raising his gun. "But no," he added to himself, "I will not shoot; their war whoops on every side show they surround me. I will scout off in the darkness like one of those bally salute western American vorloppers, such as the subtle Arizona Alred previous English travelers to these wilds have written about. But just won't I write a book that will thrill! Pleadly when I get back unscathed—if I ever do!"

And dropping the marshmallows which he was toasting, a box of which he had found among Esther's effects, the frightened barrister stole softly away, but he was not so frightened as to leave his luggage behind. He bore with him the deer head, the suitcase, and the gun, and on higher land, out of earshot of the swampy war cries of the greenhorns, he camped, quite unconfortably, thank you, in the crook of a large live oak tree.

Day broke on the other side of the mountain at the Lady Veronica mines. The hoarse whistle at the power plant woke the echoes of the mountain gorge. The miners tumbled from their bunks and stormed the greasy cookhouse. In the boss' shack the telephone rang and a sleepy assistant foreman took a message from "John Powell," chief engineer at the workings on the other side, to which from the Lady Veronica mines a tunnel was driven four miles through the mountain. The message called for all hands to quit the job and come through to the new workings on the other side. This message is delivered to miners, outside men, the cookhouse help, even to the ore strippers who have just begun to load the ore carrying cable cradle that carries the ore from the hillside outcrop across the gorge to the tippie on the other side of the ravine.

The whistle woke Esther and Quabba

QUABBA SEIZED THE SLEDGE AND SHATTERED DOWN THE DOOR.

"I do not know where she is gone, but I jolly well know I am going myself!" And gathering up the suit case he thought was his, and taking his gun, and the mounted deer head, the trophy that he prized beyond all his possessions, the English lawyer tottered off into the wilds in the direction of the Lady Veronica mines, as he thought.

When Luke and Blair arrived upon the scene they told the driver his young lady passenger was safe at the blacksmith shop and they had come for her belongings. None could be found, however, and Luke and Blair returned reviling each other.

Darkness was falling at the time the accident occurred. It was dark in the blacksmith shop, but Esther felt the braver at the absence of the two men. She struggled and freed herself from the ropes that had kept herself posted as regards Arthur's comings and goings.

She had met Arthur, it is true. Twice she had seen him. The meeting had been but a passing introduction at Mrs. Randolph's ball in Richmond. In the excitement that followed an swiftly when the diamond had been torn from her own fair neck by an unseen hand, an excitement heightened by the further climax of Arthur's arrest on the charge of having murdered Dr. Lee and his desperate fight and flight, the passing introduction had left no impression other than perhaps the slightest upon Arthur, Vivian was sure.

After this she had briefly seen him at the tournament at Fairfax. But these brief contacts, Vivian realized, were as nothing. She felt that to impress Arthur she must throw herself in his way at a time when there would be no distraction to mitigate against the dramatic intensity of the meeting as she planned it.

Vivian had sedulously kept out of Arthur's way in Los Angeles, and now that she had brought on Blair to aid her later, but had was far away and a designing and unscrupulous, beautiful woman was consummating a desperate plan to ensnare him.

Nearer and nearer came the speeding Luke and Blair. Quabba seized Esther by the hand and turned sharply down, the rocky hillside where the sheds at the mine mouth could be seen at the bottom of the wild gorge far below. Over rock and shrub, down the dizzy hillside, Quabba and Esther fled. But the more sturdy and agile Blair and Luke gained on them.

Suddenly Quabba held back himself and Esther with an effort. They had reached the upper anchorage of the cable carrier across the gorge. Here the empty ore cradle hangs upon its pulleys just as the ore strippers at the outcrop left it when summoned, with the other workmen, to proceed through the tunnel in the mountains to the new workings on the other side.

"Quick!" gasped Quabba, clambering nimbly into the ore carrier, and helping Esther up beside him.

Just as the hand of Luke Lovell clutched at the carrier, Quabba lifted the catch and sent Blair away for the present that she might better work out her plan unhampered. Vivian Marston felt that the gods were kind and she resolved she would not fail. Every tie that bound Arthur Stanley to his old life in Virginia was broken, now that he was "John Powell," California millionaire, hattered, sought after. Every tie was broken, save perhaps his affection for Esther. But youth and success and flattery lead to forgetfulness, as Vivian knew. Once could she cross his path impressively, as she planned, she felt sure she could hold him and Esther would be but a memory, a faint influence no longer to be feared. Here at Santa Barbara where she had also come Vivian had taken care to avoid "John Powell" when that courted young magnate had arrived to take command of the palatial steam yacht that would be delivered to him in the beautiful bay of Santa Barbara.

Her prospective prey had come on horseback and had met the yacht broker shortly before she had arrived. He had donned the expensive yachting attire that had been sent here for him and was on his way to the wharf as Vivian watched from the window of her room in the hotel and mused upon her plan.

"That is the new yacht the young millionaire, John Powell, has just bought, is it not?" she asked of the attentive hotel maid. The maid was quick to assent. "Have you seen Mr. Powell, ma'am?" the maid asked, eagerly. "He is so handsome all the young ladies at the hotel are dying to meet him!"

"He is an old friend of mine," said Vivian, smiling. "You had he went to his yacht before I saw him. I know he would have taken me aboard." Then, as though the idea had just occurred to her, she clasped her shapely and gem covered hands together and cried, "I know what I will do! I wired here before I came that a sailboat should be hired for me. The clerk told me the owner of the sailboat had it waiting for me anchored off the dock. If I hurry I can sail out to the yacht before Mr. Powell will be through looking it over and getting under way for the trial trip! Here, help me into these clothes!" And with the maid's assistance Vivian quickly attired herself in a fetching sailor costume which set off her rich beauty to advantage.

Calling a taxi, she drove to the wharf to find the sailboat owner waiting for her. Declaring she was a good sailor of pleasure craft and could handle a small boat as well as any man—which was true enough—Vivian Marston refused the assistance of the bewildered sailboat owner. She had him run up the sail for her and left him at the wharf and headed the pretty craft in the direction of the graceful yacht anchored far out. Already, with steam up and anchor weighed, the yacht was ready to start off on its first voyage under the command of its new owner, "John Powell."

Far away in the Sierras, in that wild region where lies the Lady Veronica mines, owned, like the great white yacht in Santa Barbara bay, by "John Powell," another fair but younger woman seeks also this fortunate young man. Housed from the slumber of exhaustion, Esther and Quabba hastened along the mountain road toward the new deserted mine. By some unfortunate chance the evil pair who pursued and who had lost them in the flight in the night now sighted them again. Quabba was first to sense the renewed pursuit. "There is Blair Stanley and Luke Lovell!" he cried. Esther gathered up her skirts and ran like a young fawn beside her faithful protector.

"The mine is not far away; we heard the whistle at daybreak quite plainly!" Esther panted. "Arthur is there; Arthur will save us!"

But she little knew there was none to save her at the place of refuge. Arthur the aerial train started across the cable and darted with increasing momentum over the deep, wild gorge and the rocky, turbulent stream that roared beneath. The cable ways, the wheels to the ore cradle hummed as they spun. Over the sickening blight, borne by the thin line of the cable, go the frightened girl and the devoted Quabba, while the desperate Blair and his gypsy accomplice cut each other and the flying fugitives on their swift and perilous flight.

At the lower anchorage at the other side of the cañon the aerial tram stops with a sudden shock that almost precipitates its occupants to the ground beneath. Recovering, Quabba and Esther climb out and hasten around from the tippie tracks and back to the other side of the gorge to the mine mouth; this time they cross by a trestle built to carry the mine cars from the tunnel to the tippie. Luke and Blair meanwhile, have plunged down from the upper anchorage of the aerial tramway to the river and forded their way across as best they can, and reach the other side, only to see their quarry is doubling back over the high trestle to the tunnel mouth.

Reaching the mine opening at the trestle end, one glance shows to Quabba, and Esther that the workings here are deserted. There is no help, not even a watchman or mine guard has been left behind in the exodus to the other workings through the mine tunnel under the mountain. Now, while they halt and hesitate, Luke, and Blair have seen the helplessness of the fugitives.

"There is no one at the mine! A strike or an accident in the tunnel has called away every man!" pants Blair. "We will have them yet, and this time we will not take the girl's word that she has not the Stanley document on her person!"

They are half across the trestle when Quabba, inspired by despair, notices the little electric engine by the mine mouth. He has not to speak to Esther as he seats himself in the driver's seat, for Esther climbs up and sits beside him. A turn of the controller proves the power is on, and the little, low, heavy motor glides off like a thing of life, grinding and showering sparks from the overhead feed wires into the narrow, dark depth of the tunnel. In they go, into the darkened heart of the hills. After them, bounding and cursing over the ties and through the mud and water of the mine, panting and swearing, come their relentless pursuers, following the trolley's blue sparks far off, with a determination that will not be denied!

In Santa Barbara bay "John Powell's" yacht moves swiftly from its anchorage. The owner is at the wheel receiving his first instructions from his sailing master. The owner's joyful face is lit with a smile and his dark eyes dance with excitement. Suddenly there is a wild cry forward. A small sailboat with a woman at the helm has laid a course directly across the sharp bow of the great power yacht. Whoever the fair sailor is, it is evident that she has lost her head and cannot change her course now, though seemingly she vainly tries.

Too late the veering of the sail, the turning of the helm; the little craft is right across the bow of the yacht and is struck and crushed and crumpled and on its side! The new owner sees the woman in the water and hurls himself head first into the bay to save her. Risking death for a diamond, Vivian smiles even in her perilous position in the water when she sees the reckless Arthur clear the rail.

But the diamond from the sky, that lately was the diamond in the sea, lies in an inland marsh in a frog puddle, dropped by the tippetman who shook it from the fish that brought it from the depths.

PEACH FUND OVER $90,000; COUNT OFFICIAL

Growers of Parlier Will Hold Meeting This Evening

One Hundred Thousand Dollar Mark Soon to Be Reached

The amount subscribed to the fund of the California Peach Growers' Company, recently organized to place the peach industry here on a sound financial basis, is now well over $90,000. Secretary J. P. Bolton of the executive committee of the company, checked over all available subscription lists yesterday. He found that these

MEN JAILED FOR TAKING CHICKENS

With eight stolen chickens in their possession Harry Smith and Vando Martin were arrested yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriffs Johnson and Harkness and lodged in jail on a charge of petit larceny. The men were found asleep in a vineyard at California and A streets.

Lists brought the amount to $79,000 even. There are a number of lists still to be checked. Members of the executive committee say the fund will go beyond $100,000 this week if subscriptions for the stock continue with the same regularity as during the first few days.

There will be a meeting of growers at Parlier tonight. They will meet for the purpose of organizing that district for the California Peach Growers' company. Mr. Bolton, chairman of the executive committee, will address the meeting, explaining the advantages to the grower of a marketing agency such as the proposed company will be. It is the aim of the new organization to place the peach industry on a sound financial basis in manner similar to the raisin industry, under the direction of the California Associated Raisin Company.

All are considered as pioneers in the organization who lived in this county prior to 1870. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

W. J. HUNTER, President, Fresno County Pioneers.

POLICE LOOKING FOR "BLIND PIG", FIND FENCE FOR THIEVES

Much Stolen Property Is Recovered; Two Men Are Arrested

In a raid on a blind pig yesterday afternoon at 820 P street Sergeant Fornes and Patrolman Bennett found a room full of stolen articles and they think that they have unearthed a fence for the burglars and robbers who have been operating in Fresno in the last few weeks.

Amado Quintere, about 55 years old, was arrested on a charge of selling liquor without a license and Santiago Gonzalez was jailed for vagrancy. The police allege that Gonzalez was a "lookout" at the house. He will be held pending investigation. A tub full of liquor was found in a room and taken to police headquarters. Clothing, revolvers, rifles, razors and numerous articles were found in another room. The police have already found the owners for much of the stolen property. A rifle stolen late Saturday night from a Japanese shooting gallery was found in the room. The police allege that the aged prisoner has admitted that he had been buying the articles from Mexicans.

LAD ELUDES COPS FOR EIGHT MONTHS; CAUGHT BY FRIEND

John Murnane Beat Way to Chicago; Parents Are Notified

After eluding the officers of Fresno and Los Angeles for the last eight months, John Murnane, aged 16, was found on the street yesterday by P. J. McLaughlin and turned over to the police. The lad ran away from his home here the last of January and the police have been on a quiet hunt for him since that time. His parents have moved to San Francisco and were yesterday notified of the capture of the boy.

The boy's father and mother were in Fresno Saturday looking for their son, having heard that he had returned to this city. Mr. McLaughlin is a friend of the family and happened to see the lad on the street. The youth was charged with being an incorrigible and was committed to the county jail. Young Murnane says that he beat his way to Chicago and then back to Fresno. For the past few days he has been at the Fresno mission. The police of Los Angeles had been asked to watch for Murnane as he had friends in that city.

RACES WITH TRAIN; THREE ARE INJURED

Fresnans in Auto Smash at Madera; Machine Turns Somersault

Three Fresnoans — two men and a woman — were injured yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident just north of Madera when their machine tipped over while racing with a train. The machine is reported to have turned three complete somersaults, throwing the occupants from the car. The injured people were taken into Madera by Dr. St. John L. Healy and later sent to Fresno in an automobile. Alex Braun, a blacksmith with a shop at 350 G street, received a lacerated wound while William Watson, his employee, sustained a broken leg. Braun is reported to have been driving the automobile.

The accident happened just at the edge of the city limits at Madera. The machine was traveling toward Madera on the highway. The driver was keeping pace with the train. When the light machine left the highway and went onto the dirt road the car went end over end. Two wheels on the machine were smashed.

EXPOSITION VISITORS INVESTIGATE FRESNO

Traffic This Way Grows; Investments Will Be Made, Prediction

The number of exposition visitors that stop to investigate Fresno county that stop to investigate Fresno county from an agricultural and commercial viewpoint is rapidly increasing with the advent of fall weather.

An evidence of this was the arrival yesterday of a number of people from widely different parts of America. All are interested in land. At the Hughes hotel are R. C. Fitzsimmons and Mrs. Fitzsimmons from Vancouver, G. J. Rieck and family and W. L. Howell and family, both of Pomeroy, Washington, and E. E. Calbreath of Iowa.

The Fresno Chamber of Commerce has opened a campaign among the railroads to get them to induce more people to come this way, rather than by the coast route, in passing to and from the two expositions.

It is predicted that from now until the first of the year there will be an unusually large number of people stop over, many to invest here.

Sheehan, secretary of the State Board of Viticulturists, Sacramento.

He announced that elaborate preparations were being made for the grape day celebration. The invitation urges that every effort be made to interest the grape growers all over the state to send exhibits of grapes from their counties.

Mr. Robertson said he would collect the choicest products of Fresno's vineyards and forward them as requested.
